Responsible stewardship Despite the fact that they were only a few years old, the Boy Scouts of America had an extensive history and tradition. It was during this age of youth that scout uniforms were first developed. America's first Boy Scouts Scouting for boys was started in the late 1890s, but as many as half a million boys had already enlisted as Boy Scouts in 1890. As an organisation for young men, the Boy Scouts of America was seemingly a no brainer. The organisation had a past (already in 1857 at the time of its creation) of providing young men in the United States with an opportunity to help others. Young Scouts could organise, lead, and motivate other young people, no matter where they were. However, Scouting for Boys began to change following a look behind the scenes. The end result was the decision that the Boy Scouts of America should be the leader rather than be the ones leading. In 1910, President Taft signed the charter for the Boy Scouts of America (which gave it membership) into law. Roosevelt had entrusted the members of his 'army of volunteers' with the task of taking up the fight against the enemies of democracy, such as 'Bolsheviks' and 'kulaks'. When the Great War broke out, Roosevelt was directly involved in the war effort. This meant that as the general population moved to war, so did he. President Roosevelt was in Washington only twice during the first two years of the war. In 1913, the BSA passed 3da54e8ca3
