I want to make a simple java app that just looks a bit like dos. I want it to run on the touch screen and the iphone 3.5 and 3.5 inch. I've been looking for a sample project that is made on a 3.5 inch screen but I cannot find any. Any help would be greatly appreciated! A: If all you really want to do is run a Java application for the iPhone 3.5, then you can do that by simply creating a J2ME (not Java) application that runs on the iPhone 3.5 and the iPod Touch 3.5. The only downside with this is that you can only run applications that are made for the iPhone 3.5 and the iPod Touch 3.5. This can be a good approach if you are developing a mobile version of your web-based app. If you really want to make your application look like DOS but want it to run on the iPhone 3.5 and the iPod Touch 3.5, you will want to just make a very simple UI using a Web browser (HTML, CSS, JS). Using a Web browser for an iPhone or iPod Touch makes it easier to have a simple UI because you don't need to spend a ton of time on UI development (because the Web browser is already there).

This can work well for some types of applications. However, Web browsers don't work well for many types of games.
