What's new:

Studio I spend a lot of time in games. There are fun games that provide fantastic entertainment and there are those that are just plain awful. I just finished playing The Room on the PSVR but I don't want to talk about it right now. I wanted something a bit more fun, because I want people to understand that VR makes me happy when I'm not thinking about work or homework or the struggles of being young. I wanted a VR game that could bring me into an alternate reality where I felt how great VR would be for music. Then I saw a design showcase video. I saw that amazing music being made with VR. I thought, "Wouldn't that make an amazing VR game?" I had to find the developers. Shunya Ikeda is the creator of the Electronauts music studio. It's hard to describe Electronauts in one word, or two, since it's a complete success story. Want to know how this "VR Music Studio" works? I'll describe it to you, but first, here's a video for you to check out, to see the whole story unfold. Electronauts: Myths of Utopia Electronauts has been a great success story. Shunya Ikeda had been making iPhone games on his own for a while before he saw the game on Twitch at Rezzed. After this revelation, he decided to make his first VR game at Voxel Studios. Ikeda collaborated with Akira "Rosary" Inoue, who worked at Liquid Layabouts, a studio dedicated to improving Virtual Reality for everyone. After a design meeting, Ikeda and Inoue joined Carlos Cardini and Jeff Rubenstein to found Electronauts, a new studio that focuses on VR music. Given that Ikeda has created numerous game console games under his belt, he has the hands-on experience for VR that other developers may lack. Chris Ippo of Sirtagames is just one of the greats in the industry. Ippo was an amazing game designer on the NES and he showed everyone how to make hit games, such as Tetris. Despite being familiar with the game, Ikeda and his team went to check out the demo version of Sirtagames' Spatial Perception. The demo was an almost exactly identical version of Spatial Perception. I noticed a lot of Hieronymus "The game is nice, certainly more polished than most games on the App Store. It does have the feel of an unfinished game, and there's barely a way to truly test how good the game is. I feel like I barely scratched the surface of what this game can offer."The present invention relates to a new and distinctive soybean variety designated XB98A12, which has been the result of years of careful breeding and selection in a comprehensive soybean breeding program. There are numerous steps in the development of any novel, desirable soybean variety.
