BLOXburg is a Prohibition-era indie horror/crime thriller full of dive bars, speakeasies, and bootlegging. The game is primarily focused around smuggling, distilling, and bootlegging in the golden age of organized crime, the 1920s. I call it a gritty, low-budget, indie game with influences from Pulp Fiction, Band of Brothers, and, well, the river in northern Kentucky. Unconventional ghost detective, involved with seven crime families, has to figure out who was behind the mysterious deaths of three of his colleagues and other people close to him in the same year. The game is set in a small city in what is now Kentucky. Game has several versions and functionalities available online: 1. Free mobile version: Simple and minimalist version that you can play at any time and in any place. 2. Web page version: The "real" and highest version of the game, where you can build your own speakeasy, club, and weapon your crew. 3. Platform version: The Xbox360 and PC version. This version includes a more complete set of characters, vehicles, and other cool features. Over 1.5 million downloads in App Store and Play Store with positive reviews and ratings. I am a 24 year old indie developer currently living in Eastern Europe. I am an artist, game designer and engineer. I've worked in game development for several years on iPhone, Android, Xbox360 and PC. I started off making games for fun, but I grew quite attracted to games that are hard. I am interested in developing as much as possible. You can reach me at: Email - @rossictez0 Twitter - @warzcage GitHub - Official website - If you like the game you can send a tip, or a donation of whatever you think is fair. Because you know, developers are not paid much! I appreciate any support I get. Please follow the development of the game on this page: Playlist - c9d1549cdd

This map was designed by Gameforge. The Bases. As you can see in this image we are building a base, but first we need to dig a trench, or at least some holes and prepare our environment. Since we have only one pair of hands we will do it with a shovel. This is the kind of work we need to do. The trench is finished, we need to cover it. The next step is to build the roof. This should be easy, right? Wrong. Ok, so it seems we will have to collect a lot of wood. This is what we need to do. This can be easy or hard. Harder? But we need it now, we don't have time to go and collect wood. This should be easy... ... right? Wrong again. This is the end result. Nice! Now we need to assemble it. Unfortunately we can only do it with our fingers. It's so simple, I can do it with my eyes closed

What's new:

Wednesday, April 13, 2009 Shot a day earlier than my February birthday in 2008. I started my collection at a local park and walked from there. This shoot took me about 2 hours as I was making myself very light for movement shots. I then left Denver up the 18'ers and drove to Woodland Park on the ridges leading to the city, probably one of the most remote hikes in Denver. I ended up making two climbs that day, sitting around the boulders about 30 minutes up the trail, taking a few quick shots of the peaks. Amazing location, incredible views.Prodromal symptoms predict psychosis in Taiwanese adolescents with bipolar affective disorder. It is unknown whether prodromal manic symptoms predict transition to psychosis in unipolar and bipolar mood disorders. The purpose of this study was to assess the relationship of the presence of prodromal mania (during the year before the onset of mood disorder) and psychosis in patients with non-psychotic bipolar disorder in Taiwan. Data were collected from a national prospective, multisite cohort of adolescent patients with bipolar affective disorder. One hundred and forty-eight patients were recruited; sixty patients who developed psychosis during the study period were classified into the psychosis group, and the remaining ninety-eight patients were classified into the non-psychosis group. Patients with prodromal manic symptoms at baseline were more likely to develop psychosis during follow-up (10 of 60 vs. 1 of 98, risk ratio 11.41, P

Combat Cats is a tile-matching game with unique combat aspects that adds RPG and adventure elements. Kitty Island is in shambles. This once purrfect paradise is now without an ounce of catnip. You, a member of the Kitty Island Homeland Security's veteran Ace Fighter Pilots, are the last hope to return peace and harmony. Go against impawsible odds and battle waves of enemies in the world of Combat Cats. The game features a variety of offensive and defensive actions that can be used by matching various combinations of icons. These icons will unlock things such as rockets, bullets, repairs and much more. Longer combinations will unlock various sized nukes which will destroy rows, columns, and chunks of blocks when detonated. Key Features: Match bricks in any pattern you want. Earn extra points and do more damage for bigger combos. Fire off nuclear weapons! Pop pesky water bubbles that block your game board. Upgrade stats, weapons, aircraft! Unlock achievements! Connect with us Facebook: Twitter: Battle your friends Android: Escape Goat Gameplay This was made over 6 months ago but I only just got around to uploading it. It took the longest to get through because I had to figure out a way to streamline the gameplay and the actual mechanics of the video. (For those unfamiliar with the game, it is a game where you try to find clues in order to figure out what the next clue will be) Clue system The clue system is a bit different to how it has been in the past: The clues you search for are hidden in the world. You will have to roam around in order to find them. This may sound like a bad thing, but it is in fact better in my opinion. It means that you will have to explore the world and not just jump straight for the answers. (I know this sounds all well and good and may, for some, be against the concept of 'findable clues' but I prefer it this way) This is because you will not know what clue you need to search for until you're actually in the right place to see it. Finally, this will cause players to explore the world
